YOU TELL US

Your casual dating relationship just isn't working out. Considering all the options for communicating these days, what is the best way to end it?

For casual dating I would think a phone call would suffice. I?d prefer that over the impersonal methods, such as email or IM.

I think the best way is to do it honestly, and say good things between you both and just end it with a simple Thank you for Listening statement! They can't argue back with it
